In this project we will start by first creating an app that can help users set goals and then implement a voice recognition AI system to give out personalized motivational messages. At the end of the project, we will design and create a "virtual coach" for people to interact with. In this project, we would like to create a web application that will help people create personalized healthy meals at home. In this project, we would work on the engine and the databases used to power the system. Once this is done, we will work on creating the front end web application. In this project, we would like to create a web application that will help people track their fitness progress from the application. In this project, we will work on both the UI and the backend of the application. At the end of the project, we will design and build the client side of the application.The Malaysia police arrested nearly 600 people for public lewdness in Kuala Lumpur alone in 2012. - File pic KUALA LUMPUR, Dec 2 — There has been a 16 percent increase in reported cases of public lewdness in the last two years and even foreigners who are not Muslim are not spared from being molested by men, according to new statistics from the police. In total, there were 1,017 cases of public lewdness reported to the police in the country last year, compared to 952 cases in 2010. Two hundred and twenty-six of the cases involved foreigners, while there were 215 cases of foreigners molested by Muslims. Not just Muslims though, as some foreigners were also targeted by non-Muslim males. There were also 185 incidents of women being molested and 104 cases where public orgy happened. Commonly called "lahcun", the 14,930 people arrested included 8,870 males and 6,060 females. A total of 738 cases involved non-Muslims and 27 cases involved Muslims who converted to other religions. There were 104 cases of Malaysians who converted to other religions, while also 272 Indonesians

There are in fact about 32 processes involved in the operation of Apache/2. This all happens automatically and in a way that Apache/2 directs what actions to take next. /usr/sbin/httpd (apache process) If you look at the system console or the logs, you will see all of this. Apache writes all logs, including errors and warnings, to the system's log file. By default, that file is in /var/log. Here are the Apache/2 specific directories where it can log. /var/log/httpd `/var/log/apache2` You may log to a file in addition to the system's log. For instance, if you want to log to a database to track the session, you can use the `logname` command as shown here. You can specify a log path for the Apache log file. It is a good idea to use the default path (`/var/log/httpd.log`), but you may specify a different one if you wish. If you have other applications running on your system that also want to log to the system's log file, you need to make sure that they don't overwrite what Apache is doing. One way to do this is to redirect the file to a different path. For instance, you could redirect the log to a file in another directory, instead of your system log. You could also add the `redirect` to your `httpd.conf` file and have Apache/2 log to the file instead. In addition to redirecting the log file, you may use the `log level` directive to specify where you want Apache/2 to log to. For instance, the following line of code would log to the system's log file: `/etc/httpd/conf.d/log-warnings.conf` But, if you wanted the Apache/2 log to go to a database instead, you could use the following example: This article has been archived, and is no longer updated. `Filesyscheck.cfg` Mw3 Download help your PC run faster.
