I'm looking at the developer tool in my browser. I'm seeing the following error in Firefox on a page in production mode: SyntaxError: Unexpected token { { Firebug tells me the first line is the problem, but the rest of the file is fine. I'm using JavaScript2 because it's what the client has installed. What's happening? A: From the docs for JavaScript2: Property access on objects (i.e. obj.prop) is forbidden in JavaScript2. You could wrap this whole object in a self-executing function to avoid the error:

```
(function() { var webhook = { content: { body: '...' 6d1f23a050
